QUAKER WEDDING CEREMONY

THE BRIDE A NATIVE OF ADAMS COUNTY.

Other Marriages in County Preceding the Coming of the Month of Weddings

UNDERHILL—MYERS — Miss Georgia Cook Myers, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Myers, of Moylan, in Delaware County, was married to Dr. Benjamin Mott Underhill, of Media, at 6 o'clock last Tuesday evening, May 21. The wedding occurred at "Kentmere Lodge," the beautiful country seat of the bride's parents. The ceremony was that of the Society of Friends, under the care of Chester Monthly Meeting, four overseers of the Meeting being present. It was to this Meeting just two centuries ago that the bride's immigrant ancestors brought certificates of removal from Cheshire, England. The event was a very quiet one, only the immediate relatives and a few friends attending. Mrs. Elizabeth Powell Bond, Dean of Swarthmore College, spoke a few fitting words and John Russell Hayes, the poet, read the marriage certificate.

Mr. Myers and his family formerly lived at York Springs and at Guernsey, Adams County. The bride and her brother and sisters are natives of York Springs.

Mrs. Underhill is a graduate of Swarthmore College and a descendant of the Gilpin and other well-known families of Colonial Pennsylvania. She is a sister of the historian, Albert Cook Myers, who is now editing the Complete Works of William Penn and who was presented to King George V., in England last summer. The groom was educated at Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania. He is an instructor in the latter institution and is also secretary of the Delaware County Institute of Science. He is a direct descendant of Captain John Underhill, who coming over with Governor Winthrop to Boston in 1630, was the successful leader of the New England forces against the Pequot Indians in 1637, and later located as a Quaker settler at Oyster Bay, Long Island.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse over white satin. Carrick macross lace and pearl passementerie were used as trimming. The veil was caught with orange blossoms and the bouquet was of white roses. The slippers were the buckles worn by the bride's brother on his presentation at court.

Doctor and Mrs. Underhill will reside on South Orange Street in Media.

Gettysburg Wins I. O. O. F. Lodge

The Grand Lodge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows will hold their 1913 convention in the third week of May at Gettysburg. This place won this convention by reason of the good stiff fight put up for it by representatives of the Gettysburg Board of Trade. The delegate from the local lodge was E. E. Slaybaugh, assistant postmaster. The Board of Trade at a recent meeting selected Robert C. Miller to go to the Reading convention and undertake an aggressive fight for the convention. Messrs. Slaybaugh and Miller went prepared with Gettysburg literature and soon won over many of the members of the lodges and visitors wearing a tag in their hats reading "Why Not Gettysburg."

The representatives of Gettysburg soon found that the official portion of the convention was committed to "Delaware Water Gap." The Southern and western portions of State took up the cause of Gettysburg, the additional outlay for mileage expenses to the eastern side of the State running into the thousands of dollars, giving Gettysburg an advantage in the fight. Mr. Slaybaugh presented to the Grand Lodge the invitation of Gettysburg to hold the Grand Lodge of 1913 here. A number of speeches followed in favor of Delaware Water Gap. Rev. Welsh of Spring Grove gave a strong card for Gettysburg, making a stirring speech for this place. The ballot was 460 for Gettysburg and 318 for Delaware Water Gap.

There were about 1200 delegates present and 400 delegates of the Daughters of Rebekah in Pennsylvania.

The per capita tax was increased from 12 to 15 cents in order to pay off the second mortgage on the new office building in Philadelphia.

The members in this State by the annual report appeared to be 148,500 an increase of 2911 over last year and the number of working lodges 1188.

On Thursday after the installation of officers when one half to three fourths of the attending delegates had scattered Gettysburg was contemptuously assaulted by ex-Mayor Weaver of York. Our sister town had not been a candidate for next year's meeting. The vote had been taken and Gettysburg had won. Next day when there was no representative of the town on hand, in the hurry up of the wind-up of business, this ex-Mayor Weaver tried to steal from us next year's meeting, tried to stick a knife in our back when he thought no one was looking by falsely declaring that Gettysburg was not in a position to entertain the meeting because of lack of hotel accommodations and moved a reconsideration of the vote and presenting the advantages of York. This mean assault aroused the spirit of fairplay in those who listened and practically unanimously the Odd Fellows voted the resolution down.

FIRE QUICKLY DESTROYS

DWELLING, BLACKSMITH SHOP AND TOWN STABLES

Good Work by the Fireman During Risks Taken in Fighting Flames.

A dwelling owned by George Bushman, and occupied by Amos Butt, the blacksmith shop of James Caldwell and stable on his lot, the stable of Mrs. Lydia Little, occupied by Amos Butt and the stable of Harry Koch, with a number of sheds, chicken houses and outbuildings, was the price of a threatening fire about nine o'clock on Monday evening. The buildings destroyed were located along alley between Chambersburg and Middle st., and along Franklin street.

The fire started about nine o'clock in the stable rented by Amos Butt from Lydia Little. In stable were two horses and a lot of harness. When the fire was first discovered the stable seemed to be on the all over. People on Franklin Street noticed the flames at alley of Geo. E. Stock, gave the alarm and it was fully fifteen minutes before the engine was under a head of steam throwing streams of water on the fire.

Meanwhile the fire had communicated to the house occupied by Amos Butt, to the stable and blacksmith shop of James Caldwell and stable of Harry Koch and buildings were burning furiously when the engine got to work and the outlook seemed threatening for a spread of the flames.

The town had the advantage of a calm night and not the high wind of an hour later, and the disadvantages of a poor water pressure, also the plug at corner of Chambersburg and Franklin Streets leaked so that the plug stream was not as efficient as it would otherwise have been. But all disadvantages were overcome when the engine located at corner of Middle and Franklin Streets got to work and streams with power and pressure back of them were turned on the buildings. In a short time the fire was under control, and the spread of the flames was checked. The firemen of Gettysburg again adding laurels to their record of intelligent and efficient work.

No animals were lost, the two horses of Amos Butt were rescued from the Little stable at some risk. The horse of James Caldwell was saved from his stable and the horse of Mel Sachs out of the Koch stable. A number of chickens were destroyed.

The Bushman dwelling occupied by Amos Butt is a complete wreck, notwithstanding some of the outside weather board wall stands the house was burnt out completely. Firemen and neighbors quickly emptied the house of its contents, when it was seen that it was doomed. First the second story was emptied of all household property, then the first floor.

Thrilling and perilous work was done by a number of the firemen and those helping in the saving of stock, and in the work of preventing a spread of the flames. At one time the rear of the house of Andrew Hartman on Chambersburg street had caught fire and a line of hose was quickly run up rear of his lot and the fire put out. At another time the peaked roof of house on same street owned by James Caldwell took fire, Charles Koch on roof of his brother's house took the risk of a leap across an intervening three foot alley to the steep roof of the Caldwell house, carrying a bucket of water and put out the flames. Dozens of houses were guarded by men on the roofs seeing that the falling sparks did no damage.

The fire on Monday evening again demonstrated the need of water pressure at an early stage in fighting a fire, and there are two ways such pressure might be obtained. The Water Company is rebuilding its plant along Marsh Creek and when finished will be able to give some increased pressure, specially when the pumps are at work, but if among the contemplated improvements there should be included a standpipe or water tower of 100 feet on Cemetery Hill, this want of pressure could be overcome and be available all the time. The town by the outlay in exchanging the present engine for an automobile engine would have a fire fighting apparatus with power to give pressure as soon as the scene of the fire is reached. It would be well if the need of pressure was met by both a standpipe and a auto engine. And all praise to the gallant firemen who fight our fires bravely, intelligently and successfully.

SCHOOL TAX LOWERED

School Teachers are Elected for Next Year.

The Gettysburg School Board held a very important meeting on last Thursday evening. After carefully going over the finances of the school district they believed it was not only possible to decrease the tax rate a half mill, but also to increase several of the salaries of teachers. The tax books show as much as $4200 uncollected taxes and the new code requires that all taxes be collected and exonerations made and collector make a full settlement before putting into latter's hands the duplicates for the new year. The board estimates that the amount that would be received from this source would give an increased income. There is no abatement on school taxes and that assures several hundred dollars of taxes and there has already been a estimate of expenses for the coming year showed that there could be a raise in salaries accompanied at a less tax saving on officers salaries and the expense, so the tax for general purposes was fixed at 7 1/2 mills and for building debt purposes 1 mill, a total of 8 1/2 mills instead of 9 mill rate last year.

The Board has concluded that the minimum teachers salary in the High School should not be less than $65. There is no question that a difference should prevail, as the requirements for a High school teacher necessitates more preparation and expense to qualify for the work.

W. A. Burgoon was re-elected principal at the same salary of $133.33 or $1300 for the year.

Miss Helen Cope was re-elected assistant principal with a most deserved increase of salary, $70 a month.

Walter Reynolds was given an increase of $15 on the condition that he includes a short hand and typewriter course, so as to give the school a good commercial course.

Miss Nora A. Kieffer was elected a teacher with salary of $65 a month.

Miss Kieffer's home is in Millersburg and she has been teaching in the High School of Huntingdon, Pa., and comes here highly recommended. She will have charge of the art and manual training departments and while qualified in latter proposes to take special course training during the summer so as to bring the latest methods to the development of this branch. She is a sister of Rev. George L. Kieffer, who graduated from Seminary this month.

There is a vacancy in the High School teaching force in that Miss Adams was not a candidate for re-election. Miss Adams proved herself a most efficient and valuable teacher and the Board would have gladly re-elected her if she had applied. The loss of Miss Adams to the High School will be great and the Board may have trouble to find one who can take her place.

The following teachers have been re-elected for schools in the Meade Building and High Street buildings at same salaries as last year.

Eighth Grade and principal of Meade Building, Miss Lizzie Rummer at $55.

Seventh and Eighth Grades, Miss Mary Benner at $50.

Fourth Grade, Miss Carrie Miller at $50.

Third Grade, Miss Rose Scott at $50.

First and Second Grade, Miss Elizabeth Ruff at $50.

First Grade, and principal of High Street School, Miss Rachael Scott at $57.50.

The colored school, Miss Mary B. Curry at $50. An increase from $42.50, and an increase Miss Curry is entitled to for the excellent school she has made of the colored school.

Miss Salome Stewart was elected substitute.

New Organization for Gettysburg.

A number of Gettysburg citizens have formed an organization to be known as the Gettysburg Building Company—the primary purpose of which is to build homes in Gettysburg and sell the same on the installment plan, thus giving industrious young men of good habits an opportunity to acquire homes at low prices and easy payments and avoid paying rent.

A temporary organization has been effected with Hon. D. P. McPherson president and Martin Winter secretary.

The plan is to build houses in blocks of ten and upward by which method of building there is a saving as compared with building each house singly, thus enabling the company to sell the houses at a price no higher than the cost to an individual for a single house the selling price for the houses will be the same whether sold for cash or on the installment plan.

The first block of ten houses will be

SOME AWAKENED MEMORIESECHOES FROM THE GREAT BATTLEFIELD OF GETTYSBURG

By Announcement of Gift for Erection of a Memorial to the Women of the Civil War.

A few weeks ago my attention was directed to a notice, in one of the Philadelphia Newspapers, "Memorial to Women of the Civil War," which it stated, that "a retired army officer, had made a gift of $50,000, which is to be the nucleus of fund of $500,000, to be used, for the erection at Washington, D. C., of a fitting memorial to the 'women of the Civil War.' " A partial compensation can be made." "The nurses—the singers, the workers, both high and humble, who lightened the burden of the boys in blue" are all to be included in such expression of a nation's gratitude.

The gift is certainly nobly done, by its purpose, and years hence, the name of the generous and patriotic donor, "which is as yet withheld, will be enshrined in the hearts of those, be they high or humble, who can claim descent or relationship from any who aided the boys in blue" during the Civil War, but particularly, before, and after, and during the famous Battle of Gettysburg. Yes, there were other battles of the Civil War. Let their deeds speak for them. Our voice, comes from Gettysburg, whose soil, is hallowed by the blood of martyrs of July 1863.

Gettysburg whose name is indelibly recorded in History, and forms the rare setting to the cluster of other recorded names, which bear witness to the patriotism and valor of those who shed their blood in the cause of humanity that the life of a nation might be preserved. Gettysburg, upon whose cresting hills, now dotted with mounds each one appealing to the great heart of our Union to preserve it, free and undivided, until the "Master of Life" shall break the dominion of death." That cresting hill, upon which the immortal Lincoln, revealed his inner being, when as prophet or priest, he stood, and spoke words of benediction, November 19th, 1863, and consecrated, as it were the earth, which was to receive the sacrificed offerings of their martyred lives. That cresting hill dotted with mounds, is now, the beautiful National Cemetery, of Gettysburg once honored by one, who was to be, the noblest martyr of all. Can any mention of the Civil War, be made without including Gettysburg, and Abraham Lincoln?

Not as the storm, lashed by fury, and force of the elements, "in angry cloud, or lightnings pain," or leaden rain of bullets, or sod crimsoned by the blood of the veterans of 1863, who still survive, but whose tide of life, is "ebbing fast away." Gettysburg waits to receive it, as a glorious Peace memorial. And from the mounds, which dot the cresting hill, voices eloquent by their solemn peaceful silence, call for the great highway or pathway which will bring hither the pilgrims from the cardinal points of the compass, that they may learn the great lesson taught by the Civil War. And knowing the terrible price paid for the blessing of Peace, future generations will understand more fully.

"That in the future as in the past, The law of right shall be law to the last."

That the crime of rebellion, shall triumph never,

But the flag of the Union float forever."

"Memorial to the Women of the Civil War." Where are ye, women of the Civil War? Noble army of nurses, singers, workers, who lightened the burden of the boys in blue, come to "the front," now, and prepare to receive an honor. Alas—our mothers, who bore the burden and heat of the days of those troublous times, who could not aid the cause by long and weary marches, when the sound of the bugle stirred the air, with its liquid melodies,—our mothers, waited at home, "praying and toiling," and aided the cause by bestowing without price, numberless loaves of bread from the large old-fashioned bake oven in the yard and steaming juicy pies, to the defenders of our homes, who came to guard them, when even the slightest whisper of the coming of the invader caused a vibration of our heart strings. A "multitude was fed," and it seemed as though Scripture was duplicating one of its great miracles, as each morsel of bread, pies and cakes, was grasped by the boys in blue, and soon divided in fractional parts, which seemed to our eyes, to multiply and magnify. We know better now. It wasn't the loaves and pies, which were multiplied, or magnified but the numbers of blue uniforms, adding and adding, then unlike the Scriptural miracle, there wasn't even a "fragment left." The science of numbers was demonstrated and the sums of Addition and Subtraction performed and there was "nothing left," even for us, but the boys in blue, expressing thanks to mother, for eating all the good things she always so willingly bestowed upon them. Their burden was lightened, they were hungry no longer. We had a sufficiency of flour, then, afforded by the fine wheat which grew in the fields, or acres near the cresting hill, to which father claimed ownership. Hence the frequent bakeness of anything which could refresh the inner man.

A thought comes to my mind now which I do not deem out of place here, as sit is suggested by the few acres, ours no longer, on which grew such fine wheat. Wasn't that field of high waving grain lovely! How beautifully it swayed in the breeze a few days before the Battle of Gettysburg!

Father was going to have it cut the "next day." Bare as the palm of our hand was the ground on which that fine wheat grew, and down over the hill where the potatoes, and corn, and beans and other vegetables, had been thriving, the carcasses of horses lay on that 4th of July morning of 1863.

I dare not think of it now. I am thinking of the Border Damage Claims. What a "God send," they would now be, to some, even though the amount be small. Some poor, lone invalid would be benefitted. Milk and eggs would not so long remain the "unknown quantity." The union of soul and body might be preserved, at least, until the anticipated jubilee of a half century of years, shall bring to Gettysburg a multitude, sons and daughters of the union, to honor the Nation's great battlefield, the ground on which their fathers fell and on which mothers toiled as they "waited for the war to cease."

Gettysburg in many a mound in the little church yards, only the "fitting memorial" erected by sons and daughters, will speak by their silence, a welcome to that great jubilee.

The silent voices will be as "rests," in the beautiful song, the music of which, will thrill the heart and awaken the enthusiasm of 50 years ago, when the air will be again stirred by the liquid melodies of the bugle, and the daughters of the "women of the Civil War," will again sing a song of welcome.

An me! Ah me! De profundis!— Shall memory build a bridge over the chasm? Fifty years! Standing a little while thereon, I hear voices from out of the depths, and the mournful note of a "Requiem," fills my eyes with tears." Even as Longfellow stood on the bridge at midnight," so stand I.—But the stars are gleaming brightly above me, and the Galaxy is studded with gems. As I turn my steps away, I raise my eyes upward, and the mournful notes of the Requiem recede in the distance. I hear the song of the stars "Forever singing, as they shine, the hand that made us Divine."

Civil War, memorial and singers, are all blended. The burden of the "boys in blue," was lightened, by the "singers" the school girls who sang, before, and after the Battle, sang in school and out of school—on the streets of Gettysburg, before the baptismal tide of crimson flowed over our beautiful daisy-trimmed meadows, or trickled down the picturesque rocks of "Round Top" or "Devil's Den." And the "big boys" of Gettysburg heard our songs, and the spark of patriotism, was enkindled in their hearts, until they donned the uniform of the blue, and went forth to defend their country. A singer must have a voice. And can the voice of any living Gettysburg Battlefield singer be silent? Come with me all ye Gettysburg Battlefield singers of 1863 and wander down the vale of years and listen to the "echo of the songs of yesterday."

Crowned with the beautiful accompaniments of youth, we were a cheerful band as we caused the air to vibrate, with our songs the notes of which ascended the "scale," with certainty, which no long metre Doxology could ever measure. And even the restless horses of the "cavalry men" seemed to be inspired by our songs, as they "pranced or neighed," on the streets of Gettysburg, bearing their gallant riders, clothed in the uniform of the Nation's loyal sons who then remembered "the girls they left behind them," and rode forth, with strengthened patriotism, to defend their country.

And the wearied feet of those, whose tramp, tramp, tramp" resounded through our streets, seemed to gain inspired strength—as on the "double quick" they went to meet the "Rebs." The National Tribune, Washington, D. C., Thursday, July 6th 1905, through the voice of the veterans of the Civil War, thus makes allusion to the girls of Gettysburg, who sang patriotic songs, for the Union soldiers who were passing on the way to the front. Further, "I am firm in the belief that the girls helped to win on that bloody field, and I believe all who are still living ought to receive a pension." Some mention of names, my own included, is made in the Tribune of July 6th, 1905.

And in the Tribune of September 28th 1905, a tribute is paid to the singers, because of a contradiction by some comrade as to singing "in or about Gettysburg, before, during, or after the Battle or words to that effect."

The defending veteran, also speaks the truth, when he credits us with "My Maryland," which some of us sang for the first time at the Christmas "Solree" of 1862 at Oakridge Seminary, on the Chambersburg pike, and from that time as before were drilled in the most beautiful patriotic songs, such as, "All hail to the Union so gloriously bright; E Pluribus Unum"; "The Old Ship of State"; "Cheer boys, cheer, we'll march away to Battle" and others.

A WAY OPEN.Many a Gettysburg Reader Knows It Well.

There is a way open to convince the greatest skeptic. Scores of Gettysburg people have made it possible. The public statement of their experience is proof the like of which has never been produced before in Gettysburg. Read this case of it given by a citizen.

Mrs. C. W. Culp, 423 S. Washington St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have till greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills today than when I publicly recommended them two years ago. I found them to be an excellent kidney medicine. A member of my family had kidney trouble, as the result of an attack of the measles. Backache caused much suffering and there were pains in the side which made lifting an impossibility. The kidney secretions were also unnatural. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured at the People's Drug Store and their use was followed by great relief. I advise anyone afflicted with kidney complaint to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

Battle of Gettysburg! A volume of memories is evoked at the mention of the name. And in the vale of years, a memorial will stand, and an echo of the songs still linger, when the last lone singer, sleeps on the Battlefield of Gettysburg and waits for the trumpet call of the great Archangel.

What would a country be without song. Where do we read of a land without music, or a combination of sweet melodies? Not in ancient or modern History. There must be a living, speaking inspiration, and on the field of Gettysburg, the "singers" were the inspiration of the boys in blue and lightened their burden, and cheered them, even afterwards, as they came, or went, by letters, which spoke with the magical silent voices of pen and ink.

Singers of the Battlefield, of Gettysburg Battlefield, girls of 1863, don't you remember when last our voices, blended. The ghost of a smile is trying to flit over my face now. Memory goes ahead of my pen.

There are no gears, no diaphragms, no valves. Nothing to jingle loose. To operate, simply attach to any electric lamp socket. Costs about one cent per hour to operate.

Surely you must see that the RICHMOND® Suction Cleaner must give perfect service, perfect satisfaction, day after day, month after month, else we could not afford this offer.

But don't take our word for it. Find out for yourself. Try a machine at our risk. If it doesn't make good—if it doesn't more than come up to your expectations, simply tell us to take it away. Could anything be more fair?

Remember it costs you nothing if you decide to keep the machine.

All we ask is that $1.00 be deposited with us as evidence of good faith and to keep away triflers. The $1.00 will be refunded in case the machine is returned.

It pays for itself, first, because it does away with the annual or semi-annual tear-ups called housecleaning (and housecleaning costs more than you think unless you have figured it out).

It pays for itself, second, because it doubles and triples the life of floorcoverings, hangings, furniture, wall paper, decorations, etc.

The RICHMOND® Suction Cleaner weighs but 30 pounds. It can easily be carried upstairs, downstairs anywhere without the least fatigue. It is a truly portable cleaner.

A RICHMOND® is built with a view to long durability and we cover it with the broadest possible guarantee. It is simple in construction. There is nothing to wear out. There are no gears, no diaphragms, no valves. Nothing to jingle loose. To operate, simply attach to any electric lamp socket. Costs about one cent per hour to operate.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive from the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these disastrous examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, needs to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in its entirety of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N.Y.—take the advice received and be well.

SOME AWAKENING MEMORIES

names of eight singers of the Battle-field are mentioned, my own among them. The picture also of one of the singers is there, one who was "a rosy-cheeked school teacher" before the Battle. A picture of the same singer is included in ours representing the green. The lady teacher now being connected with the National Association of Army Nurses, the widow of a veteran. In "unwritten history, the recollections of old residents" necessitated pictures, and names of old and young according to the work with which they were associated at the time of the Battle. How they echo, does enchant us!

Singers, don't you remember when our voices last blended? On the 40th Anniversary of the Battle, how we stood on the high platform in the "Diamond," ground over which the Southern troops drove the Union Army on the afternoon of July 1st 1863, and gazing at the four cornered arch of welcome, we raised our voices and sang again the patriotic songs we sang 40 years ago, on the streets of Gettysburg. We "Rallied 'round the Flag," again. Just before the Battle mother, "Tramp, tramp, tramp the boys are marching." "When the cruel war is over," Star Spangled Banner, and all the old time war songs we could remember, rang out in the quiet evening air, and enchanted the audience below. A good sized audience too, for we had visitors from abroad, veterans and others attending the celebration. The Blue and the Gray were represented. Instead of being 40 years older, we were 40 years younger.

Alas! had disappeared. And our voices—well, their notes may have been a little lower in the scale—but still they had a harmonious blending. Of course, we saw a humorous side too as we looked into each other's faces and heard the echo of our voices Poe's Raven, would have croaked his note of admiration—"Nevermore."

And now the "singers" are to be included in a "memorial." All honor to the noble giver, who made the gift which is to be the nucleus. Lone singers who belong to Gettysburg but not to any veteran, whose names will never be so indicated—who were here during the Battle,—you singers who were in the Battle, and passed through it—and still remain alone are we not veterans too? Don't the widows and the nurses and second wives even, receive pensions? Are not "special acts" passed? Why can't we too, pass through a "special act"? We are "specials." There is but one Gettysburg which by decisive voice, brought together from the Cardinal points of the compass, the "blue and the gray" and connected the links of that great chain, which binds them in the brotherhood of one grand special Union. Why cannot we too, receive a recognition which will enable us to procure at least a few of the digestible substantial of life, before we rest in oblivion? We want to live to see that "Memorial" but we want first to receive a "special" which will bring a smile to our faces equal to that which we have seen on the faces of those whom the Nation recognizes as its own. We are too, the Nation's own. And the "partial recompense," made by a "Memorial" to the women of the Civil War, would be completed. Some generous, patriotic, retired, army officer, could command the movement and uniting his voice with that noble retired army officer who made the generous gift, which is to be the "nucleus" an appeal could be made to the great heart of our Nation, in whose cause the Gettysburg singers of the Battlefield, were also enlisted, and served, not only "ninety days," but before and until the bitter ending of the war. Raise your voices now, ye "powers that be," and speak for the lone veteran singers of the Battlefield of Gettysburg, that they may soon receive, substantial recognition from a generous Government. And that reminds me now, but not with any spirit of criticism, do I say it, but only, as a plea for us, that any veteran's widow can marry again, thus depriving her self of that pension, and upon the death of second husband, who was not a veteran, the widow's pension, of the former veteran husband can be resumed. We do not understand. This fact forces itself upon us because on the picture of the fifteen singers among the "settled" sitting ones, the doubly widowed face is represented, whose pension was resumed, and still resumes, and thriving children, bless both unions. Is not that, a generous Government which so blesses a double widow? Be generous to us enthusiastic, patriotic Government, and bless us who yet stand in the unsettled "single file," by a merited recognition. Raise your voices now, noble Representatives of our Nation, and aid our cause. Let no base voice protest, and let not your voices be so low, that even the shade of Washington cannot hear.

Let our voice from the Battlefield of Gettysburg, find an echo now, and stir, brave patriotic men to speedy action and repeat the lines suggested and evoked by the reading of that "Memorial" notice in a Philadelphia Newspaper, but credited to the "Boston Post."

And the "echo of the songs of yesterday" will follow us, until mingling with the last notes of "Requiem," the glorious but to us silent echo of a "Requiecat in pace," ends the song of a Gettysburg Battlefield singer.

Supposed Pen-Mar Murder.

A hearing before Justice of Peace Potter of Waynesboro on last Friday was a link in the chain leading up to the charge of murder against a colored youth named Herbert Lewis. His alleged victim was Mrs. Carrie McCabe a Baltimore woman who occupied a cottage at Pen Mar and who was found dead in her home on the morning of April 20.

It was first thought that Mrs. McCabe died a natural death but on return of her husband, Henry McCabe, a fireman on a vessel who was in Florida, the authorities were asked by him to investigate into the circumstances of her death, as he had found a bruise under right side of her jaw. He declared that three diamond rings, money and papers, a mesh bag and a silk shawl had been stolen from the Pen Mar cottage. The husband at the hearing identified the sapphire ring the colored boy tried to wear as one belonging to his wife.

The crime of murder is based it is said on the confession of the crime made by Lewis to a colored acquaintance, Sherman Jackson. The latter gives the confession of Lewis as being as follows.

"Lewis crawled into a house on the mountain, had choked the woman and when some one came down stairs he slammed the door in that person's face and then went back and finished killing the woman."

George McCabe, the 12 year old son of the dead woman, said that on the evening of April 19 he went to the store at 7 o'clock, returned with papers and read until 11 p.m. He put down the windows in his mother's room, locked the door leading to the porch and went to bed. Later he heard a strange sound. He went downstairs and the door leading from the kitchen to his mother's room was slammed in his face.

He asked his mother whether she needed him. A voice replied in a whisper, "No." Then he asked, "Shall I go back to bed?" The same voice replied in a whisper, "Yes."

He did not know whether or not it was his mother's voice. Next morning at 8 o'clock he went downstairs. Mrs. Lohman, who was employed about the house, was on the porch waiting to get in. He let her in and then went to the door leading to his mother's room. He found this locked and then went around on the outside and found the window open. He crawled through and found his mother dead. She was lying on the bed on her left side. One arm stretched out and both feet were drawn up under her. Her head was at the foot of the bed.

The undertaker described how blood ran out of her mouth when he was called in, and he thought death was caused by a hemorrhage.

Coroner J. P. Macay gave it as his opinion after a careful examination of the body of Mrs. McCabe that her death was due to a hemorrhage, and this could have been caused either by fright or violence. Dr. A. B. Snively gave the same opinion and also that Mrs. McCabe was very ill with pulmonary tuberculosis.

The murder charge rested largely upon the confession alleged to have been made by Lewis to his companion Sherman Jackson, speaking several times of killing the woman.

Lewis was held in $1000 bail for larceny of rings, to which he had confessed and Jackson was held as a witness and both committed to the jail at Chambersburg.

An autopsy was held last week on body of Mrs. McCabe to determine if possible the cause of death. It was made known by Dr. A. L. Wesels, a surgeon of prominence and in a lengthy report he gave it as his opinion that death was due to pulmonary hemorrhage. The report of the surgeon satisfied her relatives that Mrs. McCabe was neither mis-treated, nor did she die from violence. As a result of the autopsy it is believed to be unlikely that a murder charge will be brought, and that the only charge against Lewis will be the admitted one of robbery.

Medicine for the Blood Is Needed Now

Because the unhealthy modes of living during the winter have made the blood impure, causing loss of appetite and that tired feeling, as well as the sores and eruptions that occur at this time.

COULDN'T TRIFLE WITH ART

Mr. Davis Learns a Lesson as the Result of Trying to Do His Own Whitewashing.

"Pay a man to dab a little whitewash on a fence!" Mr. Davis snorted indignantly.

"If I couldn't do fool work like that I'd sell out," he said. Mrs. Davis sighed, bringing up the sigh from the deep well of experience.

"You'll muss yourself all up," she protested, "and it will hurt your back—" Mr. Davis laughed scornfully.

"Just you watch me," he said, with confidence. Then he went out and bought a whitewash brush. He paid a quarter for it, and the dealer had tried to make him buy one for 75 cents.

"Seventy-five cents for a whitewash brush!" Mr. Davis was so angry he screamed.

Then he bought a bushel of lime and went home. The lime was a fine powder when it came and when mixed with water became a watery fluid with flakes of white on top. The lime stayed in the bottom of the tub.

When he used the new brush it shed hairs like a setter dog in summer and, being wet, showed that it possessed two thin rows of hairs on either side and none in the middle. Also, when the whitewashing dried the fence looked in nowise different from its former ugliness. Mr. Davis considered his back hurt. There was lime in his eyes and he was mad clear through.

He went into the house and found Mrs. Davis preparing to go down town, so he went back to his work.

As soon as she was safely out of sight he headed for a negro shack he knew and resurrected Uncle Peter, who was 76 years old and had been whitewashing and doing odd jobs for 70 years.

He turned the job over to Uncle Peter, who threw his brush into the alley, emptied the whitewash and procured $2 from him.

With a wheelbarrow Uncle Peter disappeared and shortly returned with a barrowload of lump lime and a brush and set to work. Mr. Davis sat on the steps with his pipe and watched him work.

When Mrs. Davis returned her husband was washed and shaven and the fence was glistening white.

"Why, you did do it!" she said. Her evident surprise nettled her husband.

"Of course I did," he said; "I do all I set out to do."

"All by yourself?" inquired Mrs. Davis, admiringly.

"Well," confessed Mr. Davis, "I got Uncle Peter to sort of help me."

"Oh!" said Mrs. Davis, and went in to take off her hat.—Galveston News.

A Quaker Wedding.

"Before God and in the presence of these friends, I, John Smith, take thee, Jane Doe, to be my wife, and I promise to be unto thee a loving and faithful husband." That is what the bridegroom says at a Quaker wedding, as nearly as the writer, who attended one last week can remember it. Then the bride says the same thing, interchanging names and substituting "wife" for "husband." After that they kiss and sign their names to a document, which is read before the meeting, and which all those present may sign afterward. That's all, and it's enough.

The young people marry themselves, taking the covenant without a clergyman's intervention, without even a presiding officer to say "We have with us today," etc. It is a mighty valid marriage ceremony to those who witness it, and there is a sweet simplicity about it that gives it a charm and dignity no less than priestly robes, stained glass and organ music could impart.—New York Evening Mail.

French Women in Politics.

Madam Durand, one of the leaders of the feminist movement in France, makes the suggestion that while conscription continues in force, a compulsory nursing service for all women over twenty-one—mothers—be instituted. Another question which the women there are considering is the forbidding of the sale of absinthe, which, as all who have lived in Paris know, is responsible for the ruin of many a career. In France women know that a breath of ridicule would kill their cause, and so their methods in pursuing the elusive vote have to be the most dignified. In spite of the fact that they have big odds to contend with, the cause is undoubtedly forging ahead in Paris. A regular electoral campaign is being held and daily meetings are in order. Both press and politicians have had their attention attracted by the work the women are carrying on and are giving it considerable time and attention.

Mustaches Compulsory.

Mustaches have been made compulsory in the Austrian army, or, rather, an old ordinance has been revived by a rescript from the war ministry, it is said, on the personal wish of the Emperor Francis Joseph. The original compulsory mustache order dates from before 1848, and its author was General Count Czylul, the successor of the famous Radetzky in the war with the Italian states, who himself possessed an immense flowing mustache and who wanted every man in the army to grow one too. The new order at the same time upholds the exclusive privilege enjoyed by the Windischgratz regiment of dragoons, which distinguished itself in the battle of Kolin, where Frederick the Great was defeated in 1757, in memory of which they were allowed to shave. Since then there has not been a mustache in the regiment.

OUR HEARTS AND OUR LIVES FOR OUR COUNTRY.

O beautiful my country, ours once more!
Smoothing thy gold of war disheveled hair
Our such sweet brows as never other wore
And letting thy set lips,
Freed from wrath's pale eclipse,
The rosy edges of their smile lay bare.
What words divine of lover or of poet
Could tell our love and make thee know it.
Among the nations bright beyond compare?
What were our lives without thee?
What all our lives to save thee?
We rock not what we gave thee,
We will not dare to doubt thee.
But ask whatever else and we will dare.
From Lowell's "Commemoration Ode"

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally. Mrs. Rosa Morris, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by the People's Drug Store.
